SEEN IN FAYETTE CITY

Tolan was seen in Fayette City it is stated about 7 o'clock Saturday evening. That was the last seen of him alive. It is supposed he crossed the river, with the idea of visiting some friends along the valley and at Stockdale got on the tracks and unable to get off in time was struck by the train.

A widow and seven children survive. The body was brought to Charleroi and later taken to Fayette City. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Edward's church, Fayette City. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery, Charleroi.

FOUND ON BRIDGE AFTER WANDERING ABOUT FOR DAYS

Aged Man Thought to be Demented Discovered in Precarious Position by Street Railway Men--Taken Home Today

Found on the third high bridge near North Charleroi Sunday Samuel Shepler, of near Monessen, was brought to Charleroi by a crew of the Pittsburg Railways company and placed in the keeping of the local police. Evidently the man was slightly demented. This morning his son, Linn Shepler, having been notified of the discovery of his father here, took him home.

When found Shepler said he had been three days and three nights without anything to eat. Street car men said he was on the bridge and unable to go either way, being somewhat crippled. When the son came this morning he said his father had left home Friday morning and had not been seen since. They had searched for him. The man has started off on jaunts of the kind before, it is stated. This morning when told at the lockup that his son had come for him he said he wanted to talk to his son but didn't see what he wanted to take him away from home for.

CHILDREN TAKE FIRST COMMUNION

Solemn Services Feature Notable Event at St. Jeromes' Church

St. Jerome's church was yesterday the scene of a magnificient celebration when during the 9 o'clock mass, over a hundred little boys and girls approached the altar for the first time to receive their communion. It is the height of ambition in the life of every Catholic child to live to see this day, and for months the little children are busy engaged preparing themselves for the event. It was a sight worth seeing, to witness the little boys and girls accompanied by their candle-bearers walk devoutly to the altar, prepared for the occasion. The processions and other ceremonies went off without a single hitch.

The Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the pastor, Father Fries, asisted by Father Trefny as deacon, and Father Axmacher as subdeacon. Father Trefny delivered a masterly sermon on the importance of the occasion, and its significance, and pointed out that they have completed one mile stone, in their walk through life. He also reminded them that they are now about to engage actively in the battle against the three great enemies of man: sin, the world and the devil, and pointed out the means necessary to successfully combat them.

The altar was beautifully decorated and the choir furnished appropriate music and the day will go down into the lives of the little communicants as well as their parents and friends as a day never to be forgotten.

GOVERNOR TENER SPENDS QUIET DAY IN CHARLEROI

Makes First Trip to Town Since Time of Inauguration

VERY BUSY WITH WORK

Desk at at Last Cleared of Immense Pile of Bills Left by Legislature

Coming unostentatiously into town Saturday evening Governor J. K. Tener spent the night and Sunday at his home here, visiting friends. On Saturday night he attended to some business matters requiring his attention. Sunday evening he left for Harrisburg to resume his official duties, but will probably return next week to be home over the Fourth of July.

Governor Tener has been a busy man since he was inaugurated chief executive of the State of Pennsylvania. The visit home Saturday and Sunday was the first trip he has made here since his inauguration in January. He mingled as freely with his friends here as in former times, greeting his ackuaintances as "Tom" "Bill", or "John" and as the case might be. He in turn was often greeted as "John". instead of his title as Governor.

Clad in a gray business suit, and a sailor straw hat the Governor looked in fine health, although he has put behind him a lot of work during the last few weeks. He has cleared his desk of the enormous pile of bills left by the last legislature for his consideration and will now have a short time of grace.

In speaking of his work Governor Tener told a number of reminiscences. He said that there was a number of matters that required some mighty hard thought to decide how to act. In many cases, he said it was a question just how to proceed. He spoke something of the more important measures that he had to consider and mentioned the mine code and full crew bill, on which arguments for and against were presented.

More than likely Governor Tener will announce some important appointments this week. Among them will be the matter of the appointment of the members of the State's first board of education, to which the members of the School Code commission will probably be named. The Insurance Department and the State Highway Department will require some appointments, and the board for the Industrial Training School at Morganza will probably be announced .

SHAM WAR BY BOYS' BRIGADES

Lively Battle Near Castle Shannon During Encampment

SERVICES THERE SUNDAY

Not an idle moment was spent by the various boys'brigades which encamped over Sunday at Grove Station, near Castle Shannon on the Charlerai trolley line. Saturday afternoon there was a sham battle in which two armies, known as the Red and the White participated. That night between 500 and 600 youthful soldiers slept on the green sward or in the old dancing pavilion at the park, wrapped in blankets and guarded by sentries, just the same as Uncle Sam's regulars do when they are in the field. The Charleroi Boys' Brigade under Commander O. M. Wise and Captain Charles Wallgren were among the brigades at the encampment which was termed Camp Gen. H. M. Stratton, United Boys' Brigade of America. Upon them was conferred the special honor of doing scouting duty.

The result of the sham battle has not been announced yet, but local brigade members are of the belief that the Reds won.

Religious and devotional exercises were held on Sunday, and the day was devoted to a big religious rally.

BUSINESS IN POLITICS.

Party lines will be drawn in the contest for the nomination for county offices at the primary election in September. That is a foregone conclusion, but it need not necessarily follow that the offices should be parceled out to suit the political and personal interests of factions and individuals. In all probabilities the Republicans, the Democrats, the Keystoners, the Prohibitionists and the Socialists will make nominations and each have a ticket in the field. That being the case the voters in each party should base their political action from a business standpoint and only vote for men who have honesty, good business sense and judgement, and who if elected will administer the duties of the office in the interests of the public and conserve the public funds and resources.

There are good honest and capable business men in every political party that will be represented at the primary election this fall, and from this class should be chosen the candidates for the county offices who will be elected in November. There are no public policies at stake at the county elections this fall, but it is necessary to maintain the party machinery to conduct the election. There never was a better oportunity for the consistent partisan to do his party a service and raise it in the esteem of its oponents than by nominating a good ticket of officials. Men should be selected for what they can and will do—not for what they have done for this or that person or faction. With the high cost of living, high borough and school taxes, it is most essential that the county be given an economic and business-like administration.

AGRICULTURAL EXPANSION.

Now that town booming has reached its height, some lesons have been learned in connection with the system. One of the things demonstrated is that population is not everything. Unless there is work and employment within the town for all the inhabitants who must labor, a big population is a handicap instead of a blesing.

But this is not all. Even when a town or city has sufficient manufactories to keep its people employed it suffers a serious drawback unless it has good agricultural suburbs. Without these the cost of living becomes excesive, trade within the town is restricted, and the full advantages of urban life are not realized. Many cities and towns are now devoting their efforts toward developing the farms and gardens adjacent. Every vacant and unproductive farm is put into use when possible, and special efforts are made to promote trade between the farms and the town.

According to the report of the government Soil Survey for Western Pennsylvania the agricultural opportunities in the industrial sections are almost entirely neglected to the detrimen of both town and country. Country booming is now as essential as town booming, and without it united effort for advancement cannot accomplish a full measure of success.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"I was greatly interested in the brief reminiscences you published the other day of the railroad riots of 1877," said C. B. Copeland, who is employed on the government steamboat Slackwater. "I was telegraph operator at Lock No. 4 at the time for the Western Union and the Atlantic and Pacifice services jointly. There were no railroads here then, and the mail was carried by the Pittsburg and Brownsville Packet line. All the country side was eager for news of the riots and the porters on the packets reaped a harvest selling papers. They could not get enough to supply the demand, and used to buy back copies of patrons after the latter had read the accounts of the riots.

"The late Capt. W. P. Speakman had a Pittsburg Gazette of that period which he kept many years as a souvenir. He paid 25 cents for the copy, and found out afterward that it had been sold five times between Pittsburg and Lock No. 4."

"Friends of mine located in Pittsburg told some interesting experiences counected with the riots. Men, women and children engaged in looting. Cars of merchandise were broken open and the crowds swarmed in the railroad yards and about the burning station and cars carrying off stuff, often at great personal risks. One husky woman rolled a barrel of what she supposed was flour half way up the hill back of the Union Station, only to let it get away from her. It rolled back down and smashed and the contents were found to be lime. Others got kegs of lard and butter from burning cars, and by the time they reached a place of safety, the bearer would be drenched with the oleaginous fluid. The scenes of wild disorder and the orgies connected with the riots, as described by eye witneses were incredible."

CROCODILE TEARS.

Old Legends That the Brutes Shed Them Over Their Prey.

There was an old story, to which we find constant reference in Elizabethan writers, that crocodiles wept over their prey. No doubt the legend arose because the crocodile possesses largely developed lachrymal glands, but it appears in various amusing forms.

As early as the fourteenth century, in "Mandeville's Travels," we find: "In that contre ben great plentee of Cokadrilles. Theise serpentes slen men, and thei eten hem wepynge."

An odd turn is given to the tale by the narrator of one of Sir John Hawkins' voyages. Whether he was a married man or not we do not know, but he writes: "His nature is ever, when he would have his prey to cry and sob like a Christian body, to provoke them to come to him, and then he snatched at them! And thereupon came this proverb, that is applied unto women when they weep, Lachrymae crocodili, the meaning whereof is that as the crocodile when he crieth goeth them about most to deceive, so doth a woman most commonly when she weepeth."

In Fuller's "Worthies" there is the added information that "the crocodile's tears are never true save when he is forced where saffron groweth." Shakespeare, Spenser and Dryden allude to this old world fancy.

Atrocities Still.

Those of us who have unsuccessfully tried the high placing of framed heirlooms in a modern home will appreciate the remark credited to a woman known to a contributor to "Beautiful Homes."

This woman had hung some peculiarly dreadful ancestral treasures high above average heads in the hope that they would seldom be seen.

"It's no use," she sighed to her husband one day on suddenly entering the room. "They remind me of so many ambitious sopranos. The higher they go the more they scream."

SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was no good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me.

"I know of so many cases where women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman if that medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANETZKI, 2963 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

RHEUMATIC TWINGES.

Before These Pains Get a Hold Take Precautions.

Rheumatism is now considered by many doctors to be a blood disease and should be treated by rigid dieting Medicines, at least in the first stages, are less effective than curbing the appetite.

If one is of rheumatic tendency she should eat little or no red meat, cut out sugar, bread, sweets and acid fruits and should drink plenty of water.

This may seem like a severe treatment for a small complaint, at the first only twinges. Neglected, they mean untold suffering, often complete disablement.

It would be a good thing for those of us who are inclined to take rheumatic twinges lightly to recall the definition of the late Dr. Spurgeon, himself a great sufferer from rheumatism and gout, "If you put your hand into a vise and let a man press as hard as he can, that is rheumatism; if he can be got to press a little harder, it is gout."

Before that vise gets such a hold it cannot be loosed, take precautions Dieting may not be pleasant, but it is pleasanter than being a rheumatic victim with only oneself to blame.

Mind Your Own Business.

An old custom once prevailed in a remote place in England of giving a clock to any one who would truthfully swear that he had minded his own business alone for a year and a day and had not meddled with his neighbors. Many came, but few, if any, gained the prize, which was more difficult to win than the Dunmow flitch of bacon Though they swore on the four gospels and held out their hands in certain hope, some hitch was sure to be found somewhere, and for all their asseverations the clock remained stationary on the shelf, no one being able to prove his absolute immunity from uncalled for interference in things not in any way concerning himself. At last a young man came with a perfectly clear record, and the clock seemed as if it was at last about to change owners. Then said the custodian, "Oh, a young man was here yesterday and made mighty sure he was going to have the clock, but he didn't." "And why didn't he get it?" "What's that to you?" snapped the custodian "That's not your business, and you don't get the clock."

The American Indian.

The old question of the origin of the red man of America is still an open one, the last word by no means having been said. The most probable theory is that which links the Indian with the Mongolaids of East Africa, whose physical characteristics are strikingly similar to those of the American aborigine. Between the Indian and the Japanese there are many pronounced resemblances, and some excellent authorities are of the opinion that it was from that eastern race that the Indian originally sprung. If, as some think, the Eskimos are the best representatives of the Indian as he was upon his arrival here, the theory of the Japanese origin is immensely strengthened, since the likeness between the Eskimo and the Japanese is striking indeed.—New York American.

Logic of the Land.

A specimen of rustic reasoning which is too good to lose is recorded in Mr. R. L. Gales' "Studies In Arcady." "A barber," he says, "was telling me with great gusto how he had refuted an atheist. I inquired what arguments he had employed

"'I asked the atheist,' said the barber, 'what portion of the Scriptures he based his ideas upon.'

"'What did he say to that?'

"'Never a word.'

"The defeat had been crushing and final."

Not Her Kind.

"Have you heard," asked Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Grace Moneylove has married an octogenarian?"

"Mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Justrich. "Is that so? Well, he may be all right, but I want to tell you I've never seen a man who wouldn't eat meat that I'd live with."—Judge.

Stories of the Paris Courts.

Among humorous stories of the Paris law courts it is told how a well known lawyer, M. Alem Rousseau, was once pleading a rather tiresome case and, noticing that the judges were paying no attention to him, said, "As the president is falling asleep I suspend my speech." But the judge had just woke up and cried, "And I suspend you from practicing for six months." Nothing daunted, the lawyer retorted, "Well, I suspend myself forever and ever," and, gathering up his brief and cap, he left the court and never appeared again.

A Paris barrister, M. Clery, however, was more vigorous. Seeing that the president and the assessors were all asleep, he stopped, and, dealing a tremendous blow on the desk in front of him that woke everybody up with a start, he cried, "Yesterday at this same hour I was saying"— And the whole bench rubbed their eyes and asked each other if they had really slept through twenty-four hours.

The same counsel was pleading at Versailles on a cold day and remarked that the judges were all turning more and more around toward a stove that gave out a welcome heat. "The tribunal behind which I have the honor of speaking" brought them all right about face at once.

Things Are Changed Now.

The Fourth of July, the day of our arrival at Albany, was the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and on our arrival we were told that great preparations were making for its celebration.

Our landlord, as soon as he found out who we were, immediately came to us to request that we would excuse the confused state in which his house was, as this was the anniversary day of "American Independence," or, as some indeed more properly call it, "American repentance." We were all of us not a little surprised at this address, and from such a person. Instances, however, are not wanting of people openly declaring that they have never enjoyed so much quiet and happiness in their own homes since the Revolution as they did when the states were the colonies of Great Britain. Among the planters of Virginia I have heard language of this sort more than once.—From "Travels Through the States of North America," by Isaac Weld, Jr., 1795.

A Wedding Hoax.

There have been many foolish hoaxes since the days of Theodore Hook, but few so cruel as one mentioned by Bram Stoker in his book, "Famous Impostors." "A young couple were about to be married in Birmingham when those officiating were startled by the delivery of a telegram from London with the message: 'Stop marriage at once. His wife and children have arrived in London and will come on to Birmingham.' The bride fainted, and the bridegroom was frantically perturbed at thus summarily being provided with a wife and family. But it was useless—the unhappy man had to make the best of his way through an exasperated crowd, full of sympathy for the wronged girl. Inquiry, however, showed her friends that the whole thing was a hoax—possibly worked by some revengeful rival of the man whose happiness had been so unexpectedly deferred."

His Summer Voice.

In an English opera company, formed for the summer months, it was found that the tenors were too light for the rest of the chorus. The manager protested that there were voices enough, and the leading tenor was questioned why he did not sing with more force. His answer to the remonstrances of the manager was, "I am paid summer wages, and I refuse to sing in anything but my summer voice." The engagement of the tenor and his summer voice came to a speedy termination.—Argonaut.

Relented.

"Peggy," said Sandy—"Ah'm sayin', Peggy, will Ah kiss yer cheek?"

"If ye dae Ah'll skreich."

"Oh," said Sandy, "dinna skreich."

"An' don't ye kiss me on the mooth, then," said Peggy, "for if ye did Ah couldnt skreich at all."—Boston Post.

UNCLE SAM.

The Way Our Nickname Is Said to Have Originated.

This familiar nickname for the United States is said to have come about in the following manner:

During the war of 1812 the United States government entered into a contract with Elbert Anderson to furnish supplies to the army. Whenever the United States buys anything from a contractor it appoints an inspector to see that the goods are up to the specifications. In this case the government appointed a man by the name of Samuel Wilson. He was a jolly, whole souled man and was familiarly known as Uncle Sam.

It was his duty to inspect every box and cask that came from Elbert Anderson, the contractor, and if the contents were all right the cargo was marked with the letters "E. A.—U. S." the initials of the contractor and of the United States.

The man whose duty it was to do this marking was something of a joker, and when somebody asked him one day what these letters stood for he said that they meant Elbert Anderson and Uncle Sam.

Everybody, including Uncle Sam himself, thought this a very good joke, and by and by it got into print, and before the end of the war it was known all over the country, and that is how the United States received the name of Uncle Sam.—Des Moines Register and Leader

Observations of a Man.

Some women never look at anything they buy, while others seem to buy everything they see.

The man who found he could never win a girl's heart has been probably experimenting on ones who haven't any.

No matter how hard a man may work, it is nothing to the labors of his wife if she has tackled the job of keeping up appearances.

The meanest man in the world is continually bobbing up. Now he happens to be one who is trying to invent a combination washboard and piano.

The young lover is very likely to question whether he is going to get a good wife when he sees his girl's brother sewing a button on his coat.

To Do Good.

You've got to live a Christian life if you expect to do any good. All the preaching in the world won't save a soul if you don't live the life, and if you do you don't need any preaching.—Billy Sunday, Evangelist, Chicago.

Man's Moral Destiny.

More and more the conviction grows that to teach men how to fulfill their moral destiny here is to fit them to fulfill it hereafter and that to do this is to bring down the New Jerusalem from heaven to earth.—Rev Caleb S S. Dutton Unitarian, Brooklyn

CHARLEROI, PENN'A.

Spoiled Her Romance.

I was blessed with a romantic brain, and a quiet, even state of things could not satisfy me for long. So the thought suddenly entered my head to have my husband madly in love with me. One evening as we were promenading the bank of the Vistula, under those venerable trees which shaded the less unsophisticated loves of the beautiful Marie d'Arquin, I brought round the conversation to sentiment. I maintained that no happiness was possible on this earth except in a reciprocal attachment, both lively and enduring My husband, after listening to me indulgently for a little while, looked at his watch, called my attention to the lateness of the hour, observed that our cousins were becoming very tiresome and that it was time to go in!—From Countess Potocka's Memoirs.

Explained in Italian.

A woman approached a policeman on Fourth avenue the other day and said, pointing to a wizened, forlorn looking Italian, "This man has asked me the way to Fourteenth street, but I can't make him understand how to get there."

"Sure, I'll explain to him in I-talian," said the policeman. "Look-a here, Michael-a, you walk-a right on-a this street-a two block-a till-a you come-a to a beeg-a, wide street-a, and that is eet."

"Grazie!" acknowledged the Italian gratefully. "Me find-a heem!"—New York Press.

The Sensitive Jester.

"De Wooze seemed to get mad because I didn't laugh at that weazened joke of his."

"Humor him when you can. You see, De Wooze is the sort of humorist that expects somebody to smash the bass drum every time he chortles a pun."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wasted Cash!

"Improvident? Well, I should say! He spends his money in the most foolish way."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. Why, only the other day he spent half a dollar to advertise for an umbrella he had lost."

Not His Mistake.

The other day an old woman bounced into an office with a notification that had been sent to her to the effect that unpaid taxes on some property belonging to her were due. She asserted she had paid them. A clerk got out the books to prove that she had not and suggested that she had made a mistake. She still declared, however, that she had paid.

"Don't you ever make mistakes?" she inquired.

The clerk assured her that he did not and jokingly added, "The only mistake I ever made was when I got married."

She looked at him for a moment and then said: "No. Your wife made that mistake."—Exchange.

The Borrowing Neighbor.

"Say, John, yer haven't been over ter my home since my birthday gatherin', jest a year ago termorrer."

"It ain't that I have hard feelin's ag'in you, but you have so confounded many things what belongs ter me that when I come it kind o' makes me homesick."—Pittsburg Times.

CHARLEROI WINS FROM UNION LINE

Little Hitting Done by Either Side in Good Contest

BUCHANAN HITS TIMELY

Furnier and McIlvaine twirling for Charleroi were invincible Saturday afternoon and defeated a visiting aggregation of fast Independent players styling themselves the Union Line team from Pittsburg by the score of 5 to 4. Furnier was a trifle atmospherise and it was during his regime that three of the Union Line four scores came over the pan. The game was won with the score tied in the last part of the ninth inning. Frank Buchanan, with one out and Mitchell on base pulled off a beautiful three bagger scoring Mitchell.

Warren the first man up for the visitors was given a walk, went second on an error and stole third. He scored when Heaver Furnier heaved the pill too much in the wrong direction.

Charleroi scored two in the fourth. Makepiece singled. O'Neil duplicated the feat and Miller did the same stunt. Then when Sloan hurled the pellet past the catcher Makepeace came in and was followed close by O'Neil on the same play.

Two in the seventh on two bases on balls, a wild pitch and a three bagger and one in the eighth ona life, and two errors brought the visitors' score up to four.

Charleroi scored twice in the eighth and tied up affairs. Buchanan singled and Mathers got a walk. Kuhn flied out. Urban got hit. Makepeace thereupon drove a fly to left and Buchanan scored. O'Neil was hit and Miller was safe on an error, Mathers scoring. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

Makepeace was seen on the Charleroi lot for the first time in a couple years. He caught for McIlvaine's team and demonstrated his ability in divers ways

• • •

Whoever says Barney O'Neil is down and out when it comes to ball playing is due for another say. He played a star game in right garden and then on first base distinguished himself. Besides he banged the ball twice.

* * *

Frank Buchanan was in the game two innings and distinguished his presence by geting two hits, one of which was a triple which won the game. He batted at 1,000 and fielded at 500.

* * *

Furnier showed evidence of good form at times but couldn't somehow make the ball go just where he aimed it.

* * *

If Jupiter Pluvius doesn't get too strenuously on the job, there will doubtles be a struggle royal tonight, when the Baptists and Episcopals are to do battle.

MRS C. S. JOSHUA ACCEPTS CHURCH CALL

A unanimous call has been extended by the Summit Hills Baptist church, near Nesquehoning in the eastern part of the State, asking Mrs. C. S. Joshua, the wife of Rev. Joshua, formerly of Charleroi to become pastor of the church for the time being. She has accepted the call. Rev Joshua was pastor of the First Baptist church of Charleroi until early this year when he went to the eastern charge.

Kean and Macready.

When Edmund Kean and Macready, intense rivals, played in the same pieces at Drury Lane it was usual to consult them in the course of the evening as to what they would appear in next. One night when the prompter was sent to ask Mr. Macready what he would play with Mr. Kean the great tragedian frowned upon him till he blushed. "Sir," he roared, "how should I know what the man would like to play?" The prompter retired to seek the desired information from Mr. Kean. "Sir," said Mr. Kean sharply, "how should I know what the fellow can play?"

Fun Under Fire.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade, Amos Stillman, Company A, Twenty-third Massachusetts volunteers, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead even in the face of danger and contributed not a little to the gayety of his comrades. At the battle of Cold Harbor, just before making the charge and while under the Confederate fire, our corporal, who was over six feet tall and scarcely bigger round than a gun barrel, became excited as the enemy's bullets plowed up the earth about him.

"'What kind of place is this to keep a man in?' he demanded. 'Absolutely without protection!'

"He had no more than spoken when Private Stillman stuck his ramrod in the ground

"'Here, corporal,' said he; 'get behind this.'"—Youth's Companion.

The Bloodletting Branch.

Not every pun is as good as one credited to a Dublin gentleman of long ago by the author of a book entitled "In Many Lands." George IV., on his visit to Dublin in 1821, met at a reception Sir Philip Crampton, Ireland's greatest surgeon.

"In what branch of the service is that magnificent looking man?" asked his majesty.

The gentleman to whom the question was put was too polite to hint that the king was mistaken in supposing that the distinguished surgeon was a naval or military officer.

"Sire," he replied, "he is a general in the lancers."

A Matter of Age.

"You ought to refuse that rich man; he is too old for you."

"I am going to refuse him. He is too young for me."

"Too young?"

CHILDREN TAKE FIRST COMMUNION

Solemn Services Feature Notable Event at St. Jeromes' Church

St. Jerome's church was yesterday the scene of a magnificient celebration when during the 9 o'clock mass, over a hundred little boys and girls approached the altar for the first time to receive their communion It is the height of ambition in the life of every Catholic child to live to see this day, and for months the little children are busy engaged preparing themselves for the event It was a sight worth seeing, to witness the little boys and girls accompanied by their candle-bearers walk devoutly to the altar, prepared for the occasion The processions and other ceremonies went off without a single hitch.

The Solemn High Mass was celebrated by the pastor. Father Fries, asisted by Father Trefny as deacon, and Father Axmacher as subdeacon Father Trefny delivered a masterly sermon on the importance of the occasion, and its significance, and pointed out that they have completed one mile stone in their walk through life. He also reminded them that they are now about to engage actively in the battle against the three great enemies of man: sin, the world and the devil, and pointed out the means necessary to successfully combat them.

The altar was beautifully decorated and the choir furnished appropriate music and the day will go down into the lives of the little communicants as well as their parents and friends as a day never to be forgotten.

GOVERNOR TENER SPENDS QUIET DAY IN CHARLEROI

Makes First Trip to Town Since Time of Inauguration

VERY BUSY WITH WORK

Desk at at Last Cleared of Immense Pile of Bills Left by Legislature

Coming unostentatiously into town Saturday evening Governor J. A. Tener spent the night and Sunday at his home here, visiting friends. On Saturday night he attended to some business matters requiring his attention Sunday evening he left for Harrisburg to resume his official duties, but will probably return next week to be home over the Fourth of July

Governor Tener has been a busy man since he was inaugurated chief executive of the State of Pennsylvania The visit home Saturday and Sunday was the first trip he has made here since his inauguration in January. He mingled as freely with his friends here as in former times, greeting his acquaintances as "Tom" "Bill", or "John" and as the case might be He in turn was often greeted as "John" instead of his title as Governor.

Clad in a gray business suit, and a sailor straw hat the Governor looked in fine health, although he has put behind him a lot of work during the last few weeks. He has cleared his desk of the enormous pile of bills left by the last legislature for his consideration and will now have a short time of grace.

In speaking of his work Governor Tener told a number of reminiscences. He said that there was a number of matters that required some mighty hard thought to decide how to act. In many cases, he said it was a question just how to proceed He spoke something of the more important measures that he had to consider and mentioned the mine code and full crew bill, on which arguments for and against were presented.

More than likely Governor Tener will announce some important appointments this week Among them will be the matter of the appointment of the members of the State's first board of education, to which the members of the School Code commission will probably be named The Insurance Department and the State Highway Department will require some appointments, and the board for the Industrial Training School at Morganza will probably be announced.

SHAM WAR BY BOYS' BRIGADES

Lively Battle Near Castle Shannon During Encampment

SERVICES THERE SUNDAY

Not an idle moment was spent by the various boys' brigades which encamped over Sunday at Grove Station, near Castle Shannon on the Charlerai trolley line. Saturday afternoon there was a sham battle in which two armies, known as the Red and the White participated That night between 500 and 600 youthful soldiers slept on the green sward or in the old dancing pavilion at the park, wrapped in blankets and guarded by sentries, just the same as Uncle Sam's regulars do when they are in the field The Charleroi Boys' Brigade under Commander O. M. Wise and Captain Charles Wallgren were among the brigades at the encampment which was termed Camp Gen. H. M Stratton, United Boys' Brigade of America Upon them was conferred the special honor of doing scouting duty.

The result of the sham battle has not been announced yet, but local brigade members are of the belief that the Reds won.

Religious and devotional exercises were held on Sunday, and the day was devoted to a big religious rally.

BUSINESS IN POLITICS.

Party lines will be drawn in the contest for the nomination for county offices at the primary election in September. That is a foregone conclusion, but it need not necessarily follow that the offices should be parceled out to suit the political and personal interests of factions and individuals. In all probabilities the Republicans, the Democrats, the Keystoners, the Prohibitionists and the Socialists will make nominations and each have a ticket in the field. That being the case the voters in each party should base their political action from a business standpoint and only vote for men who have honesty, good business sense and judgement, and who if elected will administer the duties of the office in the interests of the public and conserve the public funds and resources.

There are good honest and capable business men in every political party that will be represented at the primary election this fall, and from this class should be chosen the candidates for the county offices who will be elected in November. There are no public policies at stake at the county elections this fall, but it is necessary to maintain the party machinery to conduct the election. There never was a better oportunity for the consistent partisan to do his party a service and raise it in the esteem of its oponents than by nominating a good ticket of officials. Men should be selected for what they can and will do—not for what they have done for this or that person or faction. With the high cost of living, high borough and school taxes, it is most essential that the county be given an economic and business-like administration.

AGRICULTURAL EXPANSION.

Now that town booming has reached its height, some lesons have been learned in connection with the system. One of the things demonstrated is that population is not everything. Unless there is work and employment within the town for all the inhabitants who must labor, a big population is a handicap instead of a blesing.

But this is not all. Even when a town or city has sufficient manufactories to keep its people employed it suffers a serious drawback unless it has good agricultural suburbs. Without these the cost of living becomes excesive, trade within the town is restricted, and the full advantages of urban life are not realized. Many cities and towns are now devoting their efforts toward developing the farms and gardens adjacent. Every vacant and unproductive farm is put into use when possible, and special efforts are made to promote trade between the farms and the town.

According to the report of the government Soil Survey for Western Pennsylvania the agricultural opportunities in the industrial sections are almost entirely neglected to the detrimen of both town and country. Country booming is now as essential as town booming, and without it united effort for advancement cannot accomplish a full measure of success.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"I was greatly interested in the brief reminiscences you published the other day of the railroad riots of 1877," said C. B. Copelanl, who is employed on the government steamboat Slackwater. "I was telegraph operator at Lock No. 4 at the time for the Western Union and the Atlantic and Pacifice services jointly. There were no railroads here then, and the mail was carried by the Pittsburg and Brownsville Packet line. All the country side was eager for news of the riots and the porters on the packets reaped a harvest selling papers. They could not get enough to supply the demand, and used to buy back copies of patrons after the latter had read the accounts of the riots.

"The late Capt. W. P. Speakman had a Pittsburg Gazette of that period which he kept many years as a souvenir. He paid 25 cents for the copy, and found out afterward that it had been sold five times between Pittsburg and Lock No. 4."

"Friends of mine located in Pittsburg told some interesting experiences connected with the riots. Men, women and children engaged in looting. Cars of merchandise were broken open and the crowds swarmed in the railroad yards and about the burning station and cars carrying off stuff, often at great personal risks. One husky woman rolled a barrel of what she supposed was flour half way up the hill back of the Union Station, only to let it get away from her. It rolled back down and smashed and the contents were found to be lime. Others got kegs of laid and butter from burning cars, and by the time they reached a place of safety, the bearer would be drenched with the oleaginous fluid. The scenes of wild disorder and the orgies connected with the riots, as described by eye witneses were incredible."

CROCODILE TEARS.

Old Legends That the Brutes Shed Them Over Their Prey.

There was an old story, to which we find constant reference in Elizabethan writers, that crocodiles wept over their prey. No doubt the legend arose because the crocodile possesses largely developed lachrymal glands, but it appears in various amusing forms.

As early as the fourteenth century, in "Mandeville's Travels," we find: "In that contre ben great plentee of Colvedrilles. These serpentes slen men and than thei ete hem wepynge."

An odd turn is given to the tale by the narrator of one of Sir John Hawkins' voyages. Whether he was a married man or not we do not know, but he writes: "His nature is ever, when he would have his prey to cry and sob like a Christian body, to provoke them to come to him, and then he snatcheth at them! And thereupon came this proverb, that is applied unto women when they weep, Lachrymae crocodili, the meaning whereof is that as the crocodile when he crieth goeth them about most to deceive, so doth a woman most commonly when she weepeth."

In Fuller's "Worthies" there is the added information that "the crocodile's tears are never true save when he is forced where saffron groweth." Shakespeare, Spenser and Dryden allude to this old world fancy.

Atrocities Still.

Those of us who have unsuccessfully tried the high placing of framed heirlooms in a modern home will appreciate the remark credited to a woman known to a contributor to "Beautiful Homes."

This woman had hung some peculiarly dreadful ancestral treasures high above average heads in the hope that they would seldom be seen.

"It's no use," she sighed to her husband one day on suddenly entering the room. "They remind me of so many ambitious sopranos. The higher they go the more they scream."

ASK FOR ADOLPH, OF COURSE

SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was no good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me.

"I know of so many cases that have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman if that medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANETZKI, 2963 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

RHEUMATIC TWINGES.

Before These Pains Get a Hold Take Precautions.

Rheumatism is now considered by many doctors to be a blood disease and should be treated by rigid dieting Medicines, at least in the first stages, are less effective than curbing the appetite.

If one is of rheumatic tendency she should eat little or no red meat, cut out sugar, bread, sweets and acid fruits and should drink plenty of water.

This may seem like a severe treatment for a small complaint, at the first only twinges. Neglected, they mean untold suffering, often complete disablement.

It would be a good thing for those of us who are inclined to take rheumatic twinges lightly to recall the definition of the late Dr. Spurgeon, himself a great sufferer from rheumatism and gout, "If you put your hand into a vise and let a man press as hard as he can, that is rheumatism; if he can be got to press a little harder, it is gout."

Before that vise gets such a hold it cannot be loosed, take precautions Dieting may not be pleasant, but it is pleasanter than [illegible] with only oneself to blame.

Mind Your Own Business.

An old custom once prevailed in a remote place in England of giving a clock to any one who would truthfully swear that he had minded his own business alone for a year and a day and had not meddled with his neighbors. Many came, but few, if any, gained the prize, which was more difficult to win than the Dunmow flitch of bacon Though they swore on the four gospels and held out their hands in certain hope, some hitch was sure to be found somewhere, and for all their asseverations the clock remained stationary on the shelf, no one being able to prove his absolute immunity from uncalled for interference in things not in any way concerning himself. At last a young man came with a perfectly clear record, and the clock seemed as if it was at last about to change owners Then said the custodian, "Oh, a young man was here yesterday and made mighty sure he was going to have the clock, but he didn't." 'And why didn't he get it?' "What's that to you?" snapped the custodian "That's not your business, and you don't get the clock."

The American Indian.

The old question of the origin of the red man of America is still an open one, the last word by no means having been said The most probable theory is that which links the Indian with the Mongolaids of East Africa, whose physical characteristics are strikingly similar to those of the American aborigine Between the Indian and the Japanese there are many pronounced resemblances, and some excellent authorities are of the opinion that it was from that eastern race that the Indian originally sprung. If, as some think, the Eskimos are the best representatives of the Indian as he was upon his arrival here, the theory of the Japanese origin is immensely strengthened, since the likeness between the Eskimo and the Japanese is striking indeed.—New York American.

Logic of the Land.

A specimen of rustic reasoning which is too good to lose is recorded in Mr R. L. Gales' "Studies in Arcady." "A barber," he says, "was telling me with great gusto how he had refuted an atheist. I inquired what arguments he had employed

"'I asked the atheist,' said the barber, 'what portion of the Scriptures he based his ideas upon.'

"'What did he say to that?'

"'Never a word.'

"The defeat had been crushing and final."

Not Her Kind.

"Have you heard," asked Mrs. Oldcastle, "that Grace Moneylove has married an octogenarian?"

"Mercy sakes!" exclaimed Mrs. Justrich. "Is that so? Well, he may be all right, but I want to tell you I've never seen a man who wouldn't eat meat that I'd live with."—Judge.

Stories of the Paris Courts.

Among humorous stories of the Paris law courts it is told how a well known lawyer, M. Alem Rousseau, was once pleading a rather tiresome case and, noticing that the judges were paying no attention to him, said, "As the president is falling asleep I suspend my speech." But the judge had just woke up and cried, "And I suspend you from practicing for six months." Nothing daunted, the lawyer retorted, "Well, I suspend myself forever and ever," and, gathering up his brief and cap, he left the court and never appeared again.

A Paris barrister, M. Clery, however, was more vigorous. Seeing that the president and the assessors were all asleep, he stopped, and, dealing a tremendous blow on the desk in front of him that woke everybody up with a start, he cried, "Yesterday at this same hour I was saying"— And the whole bench rubbed their eyes and asked each other if they had really slept through twenty-four hours.

The same counsel was pleading at Versailles on a cold day and remarked that the judges were all turning more and more around toward a stove that gave out a welcome heat. "The tribunal behind which I have the honor of speaking" brought them all right about face at once.

Things Are Changed Now.

The Fourth of July, the day of our arrival at Albany, was the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and on our arrival we were told that great preparations were making for its celebration.

Our landlord, as soon as he found out who we were, immediately came to us to request that we would excuse the confused state in which his house was, as this was the anniversary day of "American independence," or, as some indeed more properly call it, "American repentance." We were all of us not a little surprised at this address, and from such a person. Instances, however, are not wanting of people openly declaring that they have never enjoyed so much quiet and happiness in their own homes since the Revolution as they did when the states were the colonies of Great Britain. Among the planters of Virginia I have heard language of this sort more than once.—From "Travels Through the States of North America," by Isaac Weld, Jr., 1795

A Wedding Hoax.

There have been many foolish hoaxes since the days of Theodore Hook, but few so cruel as one mentioned by Bram Stoker in his book, "Famous Impostors." "A young couple were about to be married in Birmingham when those officiating were startled by the delivery of a telegram from London with the message: 'Stop marriage at once. His wife and children have arrived in London and will come on to Birmingham.' The bride fainted, and the bridegroom was frantically perturbed at thus summarily being provided with a wife and family But it was useless—the unhappy man had to make the best of his way through an exasperated crowd, full of sympathy for the wronged girl. Inquiry, however, showed her friends that the whole thing was a hoax—possibly worked by some revengeful rival of the man whose happiness had been so unexpectedly deferred."

His Summer Voice.

In an English opera company, formed for the summer months, it was found that the tenors were too light for the rest of the chorus. The manager protested that there were voices enough, and the leading tenor was questioned why he did not sing with more force. His answer to the remonstrances of the manager was, "I am paid summer wages, and I refuse to sing in anything but my summer voice." The engagement of the tenor and his summer voice came to a speedy termination.—Argonaut.

Relented.

"Peggy," said Sandy—"Ah'm sayin', Peggy, will Ah kiss yer cheek?"

"If ye dae Ah'll skreich."

"Oh," said Sandy, "dinna skreich."

"An' don't ye kiss me on the mooth, then," said Peggy, "for if ye did Ah couldnt skreich at all."—Boston Post

UNCLE SAM.

The Way Our Nickname Is Said to Have Originated.

This familiar nickname for the United States is said to have come about in the following manner:

During the war of 1812 the United States government entered into a contract with Elbert Anderson to furnish supplies to the army. Whenever the United States buys anything from a contractor it appoints an inspector to see that the goods are up to the specifications. In this case the government appointed a man by the name of Samuel Wilson He was a jolly, whole souled man and was familiarly known as Uncle Sam.

It was his duty to inspect every box and cask that came from Elbert Anderson, the contractor, and if the contents were all right the cargo was marked with the letters "E. A.—U. S." the initials of the contractor and of the United States.

The man whose duty it was to do this marking was something of a joker, and when somebody asked him one day what these letters stood for he said that they meant Elbert Anderson and Uncle Sam.

Everybody, including Uncle Sam himself, thought this a very good joke, and by and by it got into print, and before the end of the war it was known all over the country, and that is how the United States received the name of Uncle Sam.—Des Moines Register and Leader

Observations of a Man.

Some women never look at anything they buy while others seem to buy everything they see.

The man who found he could never win a girl's heart has been probably experimenting on ones who haven't any.

No matter how hard a man may work, it is nothing to the labors of his wife if she has tackled the job of keeping up appearances.

The meanest man in the world is continually bobbing up. Now he happens to be one who is trying to invent a combination washboard and piano.

The young lover is very likely to question whether he is going to get a good wife when he sees his girl's brother sewing a button on his coat.

To Do Good.

You've got to live a Christian life if you expect to do any good. All the preaching in the world won't save a soul if you don't live the life, and if you do you don't need any preaching.—Billy Sunday, Evangelist, Chicago.

Man's Moral Destiny.

More and more the conviction grows that to teach men how to fulfill their moral destiny here is to fit them to fulfill it hereafter and that to do this is to bring down the New Jerusalem from heaven to earth.—Rev Caleb S. Dutton Unitarian, Brooklyn

CHARLEROI, PENN'A.

Spoiled Her Romance.

I was blessed with a romantic brain and a quiet, even state of things could not satisfy me for long So the thought suddenly entered my head to have my husband madly in love with me One evening as we were promenading the bank of the Vistula, under those venerable trees which shaded the less unsophisticated loves of the beautiful Marie d'Arquin, I brought round the conversation to sentiment. I maintained that no happiness was possible on this earth except in a reciprocal attachment. both lively and enduring My husband, after listening to me indulgently for a little while, looked at his watch, called my attention to the lateness of the hour, observed that our cousins were becoming very tiresome and that it was time to go in!—From Countess Potocka's Memoirs.

Explained in Italian.

A woman approached a policeman on Fourth avenue the other day and said, pointing to a wizened, forlorn looking Italian, "This man has asked me the way to Fourteenth street, but I can't make him understand how to get there."

"Sure, I'll explain to him in I-talian," said the policeman. "Look-a here. Michael-a you walk-a right on-a this street-a two block-a till-a you come-a to a beeg-a, wide street-a, and that is eet."

"Grazie!" acknowledged the Italian gratefully. "Me find-a heem!"—New York Press.

The Sensitive Jester.

"De Wooze seemed to get mad because I didn't laugh at that weazened joke of his"

"Humor him when you can. You see, De Wooze is the sort of humorist that expects somebody to smash the bass drum every time he chortles a pun."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wasted Cash!

"Improvident? Well, I should say! He spends his money in the most foolish way."

"Indeed?"

"Yes. Why, only the other day he spent half a dollar to advertise for an umbrella he had lost."

Not His Mistake.

The other day an old woman bounced into an office with a notification that had been sent to her to the effect that unpaid taxes on some property belonging to her were due. She asserted she had paid them. A clerk got out the books to prove that she had not and suggested that she had made a mistake. She still declared, however, that she had paid.

"Don't you ever make mistakes?" she inquired.

The clerk assured her that he did not and jokingly added, "The only mistake I ever made was when I got married."

She looked at him for a moment and then said: "No. Your wife made that mistake."—Exchange.

The Borrowing Neighbor.

"It ain't that I have hard feelin's ag'in you, but you have so confounded many things what belongs ter me that when I come it kind o' makes me homesick"—Pittsburg Times.

CHARLEROI WINS FROM UNION LINE

Little Hitting Done by Either Side in Good Contest

BUCHANAN HITS TIMELY

Furnier and McIlvaine twirling for Charleroi were invincible Saturday afternoon and defeated a visiting aggregation of fast Independent players styling themselves the Union Line team from Pittsburg by the score of 5 to 4. Furnier was a trifle atmospherise and it was during his regime that three of the Union Line four scores came over the pan. The game was on with the score tied in the last part of the ninth inning. Frank Buchanan, with one out and Mitchell on base pulled off a beautiful three bagger scoring Mitchell

Warren the first man up for the visitors was given a walk, went second on an error and stole third. He scored when Heaver Furnier heaved the pill too much in the wrong direction.

Charleroi scored two in the fourth. Makepiece singled. O'Neil duplicated the feat and Miller did the same stunt. Then when Sloan hurled the pellet past the catcher Makepeace came in and was followed close by O'Neil on the same play.

Two in the seventh on two bases on balls, a wild pitch and a three bagger and one in the eighth ona life, and two errors brought the visitors' score up to four.

Charleroi scored twice in the eighth and tied up affairs. Buchanan singled and Mathers got a walk Kuhn flied out. Urban got hit. Makepeace thereupon drove a fly to left and Buchanan scored. O'Neil was hit and Miller was safe on an error, Mathers scoring. Score:

BASEBALL BINGLES

Makepeace was seen on the Charleroi lot for the first time in a couple years. He caught for McIlvaine's team and demonstrated his ability in divers ways

* * *

Whoever says Barney O'Neil is down and out when it comes to ball playing is due for another say. He played a star game in right garden and then on first base distinguished himself. Besides he banged the ball twice.

* * *

Frank Buchanan was in the game two innings and distinguished his presence by geting two hits, one of which was a triple which won the game. He batted at 1,000 and fielded at 500.

* * *

Furnier showed evidence of good form at times but couldn't somehow make the ball go just where he aimed it.

* * *

If Jupiter Pluvius doesn't get too strenuously on the job, there will doubtles be a struggle royal tonight, when the Baptists and Episcopals are to do battle.

The Lutherans have had their share of postponed games

Kean and Macready.

When Edmund Kean and Macready, intense rivals, played in the same pieces at Drury Lane it was usual to consult them in the course of the evening as to what they would appear in next One night when the prompter was sent to ask Mr Macready what he would play with Mr Kean the great tragedian frowned upon him till he blushed "Sir," he roared, "how should I know what the man would like to play?" The prompter retired to seek the desired information from Mr Kean. "Sir," said Mr. Kean sharply, "how should I know what the fellow can play?"

Fun Under Fire.

"One of the characteristics of my old comrade, Amos Stillman, Company A, Twenty-third Massachusetts volunteers, was bravery in actual fighting service," said the old soldier "Another characteristic was a sense of humor which stood him in good stead even in the face of danger and contributed not a little to the gayety of his comrades At the battle of Cold Harbor, just before making the charge and while under the Confederate fire, our corporal, who was over six feet tall and scarcely bigger round than a gun barrel, became excited as the enemy's bullets plowed up the earth about him.

"'What kind of place is this to keep a man in?' he demanded. 'Absolutely without protection!'

"He had no more than spoken when Private Stillman stuck his ramrod in the ground

"'Here, corporal,' said he, 'get behind this.'"—Youth's Companion.

The Bloodletting Branch.

Not every pun is as good as one credited to a Dublin gentleman of long ago by the author of a book entitled "In Many Lands." George IV., on his visit to Dublin in 1821, met at a reception Sir Philip Crampton, Ireland's greatest surgeon.

"In what branch of the service is that magnificent looking man?" asked his majesty

The gentleman to whom the question was put was too polite to hint that the king was mistaken in supposing that the distinguished surgeon was a naval or military officer.

"Sire," he replied, "he is a general in the lancers."

A Matter of Age

"You ought to refuse that rich man; he is too old for you"

"I am going to refuse him. He is too young for me."

"Too young?"

"Sure; he might live twenty years yet."—Houston Post.

Very Sociable.

"Are you interested in socialism?"

"Oh, yes, indeed! I get up all the socials at our church."—Judge.
